Consumers Will Have Turn to Speak Pieces Tomorrow on Utility

Adviser Says Bill to Reform Light and Power Situation in State Would be Remedial and Offer Loophole in Cases of Actual In-

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 27 (AP)—It will be the consumers' turn tomorrow to appear before the legislative committee studying Governor Lehman's public utility reform bills.

The governor's principal bill, enabling cities to build their own power plants, was attacked by utility companies at last week's hearing as one which would bring "utter ruin" on the companies. The bill led by Lloyd Carlisle, chairman of the board of the Niagara Hudson company and other companies, selling 75 per cent of the state's electricity. Because of the controversy raised

NRA Now Sounding Board for Critics At Five-Ring Circus

Solid Booking in Capital Auditorium For Three Days and Nights For Discussion of Vital Problems—And Then Comes "Sharpshooting" at Codes.

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP).—The sounding boards and amplifiers which for eight months have carried to the country the scream of the Blue Eagle, were turned over to NRA's critics today.

Five "rings" were set up—five simultaneous performances going day and night—with more than 200 performers already lined up for 15 minute periods of sharpshooting at codes and their administration.

Thus Hugh S. Johnson set out to expose to public view what is really thought of NRA by different groups affected.

As a prelude to the extraordinary performance, Johnson elevated one of the critics—Leon Henderson of the Russell Sage Foundation—to a top place inside the NRA machine yesterday, making him director of the research and planning division.

At the same time he received Clarence Darrow and his fellow members of the new review board, charged with protecting the little fellow against oppression, and arranged to have them received today at the White House an official grant of power from President Roosevelt.

The "circus" itself was to get underway at 2 o'clock in the afternoon in five of the larger downtown Washington auditoriums. The session given most importance, dealing with spreading employment, shortening work hours and other labor questions, was booked solid for three days and nights.

The next big one—the effect of codes on small business and minority interests—is calculated to be good for almost as long.

The program, however, was just a prelude, a big show to precede the serious business of next week. Then President Roosevelt in person will open the first joint session of 300 code authorities. Nearly 2,500 men, elected delegates and regulators of American business, will be on hand.

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP).—Francis M. Stephenson of The Associated Press is the new president of the White House Correspondents Association. He was elected to succeed George E. Durno of McClure Newspaper Syndicate. Stephenson has covered the White House since the inauguration of President Roosevelt.

Impressive Rites for the Rev. O.E. Brandorff

Funeral Services Held Today For Late Pastor of Redeemer Lutheran Church Largely Attended By Congregation and Close Friends.

Impressive Lutheran funeral services were held this morning at 11 o'clock for the Rev. Oscar E. Brandorff, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, in the church on Wurts street, which he had served so well for the past 31 years. Interment was in Montrose cemetery long before the hour for the service the church began to fill with the members of the congregation and the many friends of Pastor Brandorff who had assembled to pay their respects to a man whom they honored both as a pastor and as a citizen.

Before the services in the church a brief prayer service was held in the parsonage, adjoining the church, where the Rev. O. Henry Cook of Ellenville officiated and then the body was borne from the house to the church where the invocation was offered by the Rev. C. W. Leitzel, president of Hartwick College at Oneonta. The scripture lesson was read by the Rev. Paul Young of St. Paul Lutheran Church on Hasbrouck avenue, which was followed by prayer by the Rev. William H. Pretzsch, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church on Spring street.

The sermon was preached by the Rev. Samuel Trexler, D. D., president of the United Lutheran Synod of New York, and at the close the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Frank W. Hersh of the Church of the Atonement in Saugerties.

The church was filled when the services opened. The center aisles had been reserved for the members of the Kingston Kiwanis Club, of which Pastor Brandorff was a past president and secretary, and the members of the clergy of Kingston and vicinity.

During the services the vested choir of the church sang several selections.

Pastor Brandorff since he became pastor of the church in December, 1927, had been very active not only in the religious but the civic life of the city, and the pastors of many of the city churches were in attendance at the services. The Rev. James N. Armstrong, Jr., of the Redoubt Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Fred H. Deming, of Trinity M. E. Church; and the Rev. Clarence E. Brown, of the Wurts Street Baptist Church; the Rev. Dr. Lucas Boeve, the First Dutch Church; and the Rev. A. S. Cole, of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church, were among the ministers attending.

There were many beautiful floral tributes, and the funeral cortege to Montrose cemetery, where interment was made, was a long one. The bearers were George A. Wilson, Montgomery Bailey, Samuel Messinger, Alfred Messinger, George Schantz and Augustus Peterson. At the grave the services were in charge of the Rev. Henry Wahl, president of the Eastern Conference of the Synod of New York.

Death Divulges The Secret of McGee

Man Who Made The Headlines In The Herby of The Bucket Shop a Decade Ago Dies Penniless and Broken.

New York, Feb. 27 (AP).—Death divulged the secret of William F. McGee, whose name made the headlines in the herby of the bucket shop a decade ago.

Penniless and broken, McGee died in a hospital last night, under an assumed name. It was not until police got to checking fingerprints early today that he was identified as the man who went to prison with Edward M. Fuller back in 1927 as the result of a flamboyant bucket shop trial.

McGee, although he must have suspected he was dying of atrophy of the liver, kept the secret of his identity to the last. Police records said he was wanted in Chicago in a "marriage racket" and also in Waukegan, Ill.

Friends are said to have sent an appeal to Chicago asking his former wife, Louise Groody, actress, for funds to bury him.

As a result of the trial of McGee and Fuller, the bar association made an attempt to discipline the pair's attorney—the noted William J. Fallon—but the Appellate Division of the supreme court dismissed the case in 1925.

After the brokerage firm of Edward M. Fuller—a man who once acknowledged that he lost $221,000 betting with Arnold Rothstein—collapsed spectacularly in 1922, the head of the concern and McGee were indicted for bucketing customers' orders. After four trials marked by accusations of contempt and jury tampering, they went to Sing Sing prison for a year.

Today Joseph Sheridan, with whom McGee had lived recently at a hotel, was held on a charge of harboring a criminal.

F. D. R. Letter Tells Senate Revolters Rainey of Veto Plan Fight for Vet Increase

Message to Speaker Declares Intention of Roosevelt to Veto Bonus Bill—Rainey Says Veto Will Take Place March 12

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP).—The president's letter to Speaker Rainey that he would veto the Bonus bill was made public today by the speaker as follows:

"Memorandum for the speaker: 'Dear Henry: 'Mac has shown me your letter of February twenty-first: 'Naturally when I suggested to you that I could not approve the bill for the payment of the bonus certificate I did not mean that I might let it become law without my signature.'"

"I don't do things that way. 'What I meant was that I would veto the bill, and I don't care who you tell this to. 'Let me know your thoughts on the next step."

"F. D. R. 'That I meant was that I would veto the bill, and I don't care who you tell this to. 'Let me know your thoughts on the next step."

"The 'Mac' referred to by the president is Marvin McIntyre, one of his three secretaries. Questioned by reporters as what the next step would be, Rainey said: 'To vote on the bill on March 12. 'Do you think it will pass now in view of the President's announced stand?'"

"I am not sure that it will pass now, but there is one thing sure about it. If it passes the President is going to veto it."

The vote was forced by 145 members of the house who signed the Lunden petition to discharge the ways and means committee from considering the bill. Under the rules, a vote requiring a majority, will be taken to decide whether the house will consider the bill.

Rainey did not make public the text of his own letter to the White House, but it is known that in it he said some members of congress felt the President might let the bonus legislation become law without his signature.

Senate Revolters Last Concert Set For April 3 Here

Blatant Ignoring Threats of Roosevelt Veto Set Out Today to Win $55,000,000 More—Confidence of Senators is Expressed.

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP).—Blatant ignoring of threats of Roosevelt veto set out today to win $55,000,000 more—confidence of senators is expressed.

Leaders of a Republican Democratic coalition, who tipped the economic act yesterday, to arise in a $55,000,000 liberalization for Spain and America war veterans expressed confidence of new success today.

Administration officials, citing the views of Mr. Roosevelt's views on the matter, they pointed to compromises emanating from the White House in the case of the proposed state veterans' bonus bill.

The senator returned to the war over the veterans' sections of the independent offices bill, the pending session being open an amendment by Senator Stephen D. Dore. It would restore with full compensation all World War veterans whose disabilities were previously service-connected and who were taken off the rolls by regional boards of review under the economy act.

Senator Barnes (D-S.C.), whose administration compromise has not rough points, was only willing to restore the presumptive cases pending their final adjudication by a board of appeals, meanwhile giving the veterans 75 per cent of their former compensation.

By 51 to 40, the same group that voted full restoration of the federal pay cut over yesterday's amendment restoring to the rolls thousands of Spanish-American war veterans removed because they could not prove service-connection for their disabilities.

Eighteen Democrats voted with 22 Republicans and the Farmer-Laborite, Shipstead, for the $50,000,000 proposal. All 40 votes in opposition came from Democrats.

FASHIONS By ELEANOR GUNN

Blossoms Go in for Individuality

This simple tailored bow-collar blouse is effectively trimmed with the narrow lace which outlines the armholes on the bodice. The cuffs are turned back. Flat crepe is the fabric.

Showing How We Like to Be Trimmed

New York.—One of the features that makes spring dress fashions interesting is the very great variety that is shown in trimmings, especially as they relate to neckwear. These newer trimmings give definite approval to crisp expressions in fabrics, the stiffened treatment being a favorite.

Navy blue, black and printed

A Feeling for the Starchy Remains

New York.—From Palm Beach, Miami and other fashionable places come enthusiastic reports of lovely shimmering satins in pale tones. Not white, as in other seasons, but in soft pinks and blues and the entire gamut of nursery shades and pastels. One gathers that there is more emphasis on blue than on the other shades, and remembers the delicate sapphire blues that were so applauded at the couture openings.

Increasing importance is given back draperies, cascades and typhoon effects, as the ingenious Schiaparelli now terms her wind-blown silhouettes. Stormy weather is still another term descriptive of the more fluid silhouette sponsored by this and other houses.

Pleatings and ruchings are much in evidence, and one must take seriously the over-skirt theme for evening, with two-piece developments generally regarded as an important movement in evening dresses.

The feeling for stateliness continues to be manifested. Many gowns have a square cut décolletage and some have fish tail or other trains. Materials are deserving of being called handsome, colors are rich and trimmings are plentiful. Bodices, skirts too, are meticulously fitted. There is nothing casual or slap-dash about the fashions of 1934. The flapper type shows no signs of returning.

Another type of evening dress to bear in mind contradicts the ruffled or even windblown. It is the tailored type, developed in dignified materials cut on dignified lines. Self trimmings play their part with this type too. They take the form of stiff box pleats instead of fluttering ruffle arrangements such as are characteristic of the softer types. Pleatings stitched in checker board design are another approved trimming for tailored types and are much used by Bruyere, who is influenced by the Renaissance.

A GRACEFUL EXIT

A back ruffled frock in chateau velvet in dotted pattern, has a matching coat in transparent velvet lined and bound with the dress material.

PLATTEKILL

Plattekill, Feb. 27.—O. Ira Thompson is convalescing slowly from a serious illness which necessitated his removal to St. Luke's Hospital at Newburgh for several weeks.

SHE ATE ALL-BRAN TWELVE YEARS WITH FINE RESULTS

Delicious Cereal Relieves Constipation

Read this very enthusiastic letter:

"Something like eleven or twelve years ago, I began eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. When I started, it was called simply Kellogg's Bran, and I believe it was one of the first products of the kind on the market.

"My friends often laugh at my fondness for ALL-BRAN. It gives such a clean taste in the mouth, and I do not feel satisfied until I have had my ALL-BRAN.

"If the Kellogg Company should ever stop manufacturing ALL-BRAN, here is one who would be greatly disappointed."—Miss Amy Person, University Park, Iowa.

Science says that ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regularity. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. How much safer than taking patent medicines—often harmful. Just eat two tablespoons daily for most types of constipation. For serious cases, try it three times daily. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Sold in the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Wittenberg Oxen And Lore Story Retold On Local Authority

Wittenberg, Feb. 24. The Freeman's Shaker correspondent stated in an article on oxen in Thursday's paper, "Days of Yoke Oxen in the Wittenberg Area," that two teams still exist in the Wittenberg region, one owned by Roland Shultz, the other by Watson Riskey. This is an error. The two teams now existing in this valley belong to Wm. Gabley and Bert Shultz, sawmill operators, and are used in connection with the drawing of heavy logs from their mountain axioms. A third yoke of oxen, now occasionally on the county highway between Wittenberg and Bearsville, belongs to Wilson Shultz of Bearsville. Likewise these beasts haul heavy logs from secluded woodlands.

When Oxen Were Plentiful

However, there was a time when Watson Riskey and Roland Shultz did own oxen, but that was several years ago when almost everyone in the vicinity did. At present horses supply what power Mr. Riskey needs on his farm and Roland Shultz uses automotive energy to carry on his mill business.

According to the authority of a native resident in the oxen owned in Wittenberg in former years were held mainly by the late Fred Happy, who had two or three yokes. Clarence Short, now of Bearsville, who had one; Sherman Short had one; Roland Shultz, two or more; Will Oakley and Bert Shultz, owned three teams at one time; Tom Shultz, one; Gus Shultz and Luther Shultz, one; Luther DeLong, one; Watson Riskey, one; Leander Bonesteel, of upper Yanketown Pond, one. One man who used to feature very prominently in activities connected with oxen was Edgar Short, who always had four teams of oxen on hand in the winter time to break, later these would be sold.

Mill Activities

As explained to the Wittenberg correspondent mill owning at one time in this valley 25 or 30 years ago, was a badge of local aristocracy, for the demands for lumber, planed and unplanned, in the market was very great and profitable. In conjunction with this, too, yoke after yoke of oxen and many teams of horses would be seen daily hauling to Glacoe for shipment on river barges heavy loads on sleighs and wagons, according to the season.

It seemed to be, so far as could be learned, a business in which all had equal rights without strenuous competitive demands, though it is quite probable that diplomacy and expediency were both involved in the acquisition of saleable forest lands.

Types of Mills

Around 1900 the most commonly used mill was the up-and-down type, employing reciprocating saws. The circular saw came into use at a later period, and, of course, with greater output and satisfaction.

Early mills in Wittenberg were: One in Happy Hollow, back of the present Sherman Short property; another was used for power; a second in the rear of the present Anthony Hegner farm, near the Wittenberg Church, owned by Isaiah Shultz; a third back of Aaron Vandebogart's farm; on Harvey Short's farm on the back road to Cold Brook are the ruins of a former mill site. The mill now owned by Roland Shultz, back road, was a water mill owned by Erastus Stone, grandfather of Floyd Stone, proprietor of the Wittenberg store, and Arthur Stone of Shady, who with Craig Voshburgh, conducts a turnmill at that village.

In the early 1900's there were two Yanketown ponds, an upper and a lower. The upper, on the mountain road to Glenford, was the site of a mill owned by Madison and Felix Shultz, a water mill. Around 1907 this mill was burned and the present structure was rebuilt by Fordyce and Tom Shultz, present owners and operators. Lower Yanketown pond, the site of the Shultz Brothers' mill, is along the county highway to Mt. Tremper. Others in the valley were owned by Fred Happy, Alfred Short, William Short and Cramer Shultz. All did a thriving business about that time.

The Wittenberg Lumber Company did business on a site across from the Fred Happy homestead, the property now owned by Louis J. Viehman, but this was discontinued. James A. (Gus) Shultz also figured prominently in post-war lumbering activities. Mr. Shultz owned Round Top Mountain then, but when he discontinued operations, he sold the land.

"Gold," said Uncle Keilup.

Caleb Cutler, more colloquially Uncle Keilup, an ancient native with a heavy beard and an acquaintance with earliest settlers in the valley, used often to tell over a saucer of bread and molasses of the deal in which a horse and a gold mine were the stakes.

The Indian told Uncle Keilup's ancestor of a rich vein of gold which lay on the Wittenberg side of Tice Ten Eyck Mountain. He would have explained, divulge its source to the white man for a horse. The settler agreed, he handed over the horse and was led in turn blindfolded to the alleged mine. There, he said, he saw the glittering content of many veins. Unfortunately, he reported, he was also led away blindfolded, and though he searched high and low for many years after that he could never find it again.

But Uncle Keilup was firm in his stand on the gold standard. He would never concede that it was lead in the hills, as the Shaker writer said. Reports still persist that it was a lead mine, however, but all natives seem resolved that under no condition, north or no north, was the mine ever in Shaker hands.

Uncle Keilup, however, has gone. The man who used to drive a light colored horse whose tail harmonized with his beard, and about whom the couple was always recited, "And away goes Keilup," can say no more.

GAS BUGGIES—Now Banned?

Girls, Remember: It's not always the ideal boy who gives you a square deal.

Druggist—Was that sleeping draught any good?
Man—Well, I took it and went to sleep right away. Then a friend along and wanted to sell me his wife's hands. Then the dragon on which I was riding slipped out of its skin and left me marooned high in the air, and a two-headed giant helped me down. But just then the conductor asked me for my ticket, and when I said I didn't have any he folded up the train and put it in his pocket. Just then I woke up. I had been asleep exactly ten minutes. Sure the darn stuff worked.

Nowadays, you don't only have to go after what you want, you have to stay till you get it.

Judge—What are you here again? Aren't you ashamed to be here?
Prisoner—No, your honor. What's good enough for you is good enough for me.

To avoid colds, keep your mouth shut, says one health expert. It will also be found a good practice in avoiding a lot of other troubles.

Would-be Golfer—I'd move heaven and earth to play golf properly.
Caddy—Well, you've only got heaven to tackle now.

Quite often the fellow who wants to see you "on a little personal matter" really wants a loan.

Goofus—I hear that old Moneybags was waylaid and killed last night.
Rufus—Is that so? Did the criminals get away with much money?
Goofus—No. The old man never carried more than a little small change around with him and so practically all he lost was his life.

Kittens. Every politician knows that if you give the people what they want they won't want it long. Envy provides the mud that failure throws at success. The average bachelor is convinced that women are given to small talk in large quantities. It is better to follow one good example than it is to get a dozen bad ones. Determination never begs for a chance. A penny saved is a good example to the other 99 cents. Strong men may go down under bad luck. But no amount of good luck can keep others from falling. With a woman a secret is either too good to keep, or else it isn't worth keeping. Some folks are so anxious to mend their neighbor's morals that they overlook their own.

Plumber—And none of your lip about me forgetting things. I've got my mate and my tools, and—
Maid—Then take 'em to the right house.

First Student—Professor Bugge says there are ten million germs on a dollar bill. That sounds imaginative, eh?
Second Ditto—It does. Where did the professor get a dollar bill?

"Thirty is a nice age for a woman," says one theorist. Yes, indeed—especially if she is 40 or 45.

Clerk—Are you looking for something in men's clothing, sir?
Man—Yes, my wife.

Suggestions for changing the number of points for each activity were favorably received by Miss MacArthur and the committee membership.

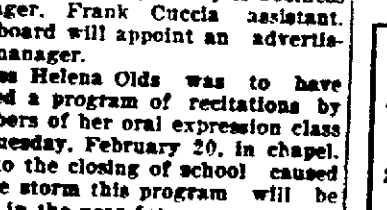

Should not be included within the points system, was felt by the group. A revised list of points in the various school activities is expected as a result of this meeting.

Tips on CONTRACT

EXPERT DEDUCTION By TOM O'NEIL

In a rubber game at the Knickerbocker Whist Club, New York, George Reith's partner started the auction with one no trump, second hand bid two hearts and Reith forthwith called six spades, which was doubled fourth hand and redoubled by the opening bidder.

Dozens of kibitzers broke into applause as Reith fulfilled the contract in a manner that illustrated how a top-notch card player can get information from bids, doubles and drop of the cards. Here was the hand:

NORTH		EAST
♠ J 4 2	♠ A 5 3	♠ A Q 9 6	♠ A 10
♥ K 7	♥ K 8	♥ Q J 5 4 3	♥ Q J 2
♦ K 5 3	♦ K 5 3	♦ A Q 10 9 8 6 5 3	♦ A Q 10 9 8 6 5 3
♣ A 10 9 8 6 5 3	♣ A 10 9 8 6 5 3	♣ A 10 9 8 6 5 3	♣ A 10 9 8 6 5 3

Reith does not recommend his bid of six spades after one no trump by North and two hearts by East. But, in justification, he knew that North would not have bid one no trump without three aces stopped and that North must have some spades, since a void or singleton would have precluded a no trump offer.

The opening lead was the king of hearts, and the first thing for Reith to decide was what caused West to double. The declarer's mental processes were something as follows:

"Obviously West must have the protected king of spades, and, therefore, I shall lose a trump. West probably has only two hearts, since East needed a long string with which to overcall one no trump.

"Are both the club king and the diamond king in the West hand so that finesses of the minor queens North will succeed or can West be squeezed by running a string of spades?"

Well, East must have something in clubs or diamonds besides a string of hearts headed by the queen with which to overcall one no trump. Has East the diamond king or the club king? Wait, and perhaps we'll have a clue.

Reith won the king of hearts with the ace North, discarding a low club South. From the North he saw a small spade was led and the ace played South. East's failure to follow verified the indication that West had the king and another trump with which to double.

A trump lead from South put West in with the king, and he led another heart, which made Reith's task harder. Had West led a diamond or club Reith might have deduced which minor king East held.

After ruffing the heart South, Reith decided that ruffing of diamonds would give him the best chance to make his slam. He led to the ace. The fall of the ten-spot East showed that East probably held the diamond king. The six of diamonds was trumped South, the North knave and the nine of diamonds was ruffed South, the king falling East.

Then it was all over but the applause. It was certain now that West held the club king. A low club was led from the South, and the queen finessed. On the queen of diamonds a club was discarded South. The rest of the tricks were taken by the ace of clubs and spades in the South hand.

“What! 98c for Tooth-paste?” (That's What You'd Pay, Madam, If It Weren't for Advertising!)

NEARLY a dollar for a little tube of tooth-paste. $3.25 for a pair of chiffon hose. 50 cents for a gallon of gasoline. And a flat two thousand for a “popular priced” car.

How far could the old family budget stagger under that kind of load? What's more to the point, how many nice things could you afford to buy?

There's one big reason why you don't have to pay such outlandish prices for quality things these days. It's because you—and millions like you all over the country—do your buying through the advertising you read!

And it's because you—and thousands like you here in Kingston who read the Daily Freeman—can afford to be choosy and critical when you shop for values.

For Daily Freeman ads save you money! A merchant can mark this good merchandise at a lower price when his Daily Freeman ad will bring many, many dollar-wise shoppers to his store. Having all these buyers gives him a good return on just a tiny profit per item! And you pay no big “mark-up”

But price isn't everything. You get better quality in advertised goods. They have “acceptance”—they've been tested by thousands of shoppers as careful as yourself. And found worthwhile. They must be good or the merchant wouldn't spend his hard-earned money to advertise them in this newspaper where you can compare them with other offerings every day.

It will pay you many times over to read the ads in the Daily Freeman regularly.

How Advertising LOWERS The Price of What You Buy!

Take Tooth-paste, for instance. Good tooth-paste. It may cost Mr. Manufacturer, Mr. Jobber and Mr. Druggist 30 cents a tube to make and sell it—counting salaries and packaging and transportation, rent and other “overhead” and the interest due on the note at the bank. A fair profit all along the line . . . and then this tooth-paste could be sold for 45c—if everybody knew about it!

Sure . . .

. . . but who does know about it? Just a mere handful of people who have heard of it by “word of mouth.” A few hundred maybe. Not enough to pay the manufacturer's rent and his NRA salaries. NOT ENOUGH TO LET HIM STAY IN BUSINESS.

And so . . .

. . . he can do one of two things. Raise the price to nearly a dollar (as in our picture above) while you brush your teeth with plain water. Or raise the price a bare nickel per tube and spend that nickel per tube on advertising—to tell his story to millions—do a volume business at a small profit—and bring you good tooth-paste at 50c or even less.

Jack Varnoy of 253 East Strand was arrested on a charge of assaulting a woman without a license.

Jack Varnoy of 253 East Strand was arrested in police court before Judge Callahan on Monday morning on a charge of selling liquor without a license to do so.

The arrest followed information furnished by the police by James Jones, a negro, who alleged he bought a pint of apple jack at Varnoy's place. Varnoy was represented by Attorney Curtis J. Flanagan and entered a plea of not guilty to the charge, and the case was set down for a hearing on March 7.

Monday morning after Varnoy had been arraigned on the liquor charge, Jones appeared at the city hall and swore out a warrant for Varnoy's arrest on a charge of assault in the third degree, which Jones alleged was committed Saturday. On that charge Varnoy also pleaded not guilty and the hearing was fixed for March 7.

Harry Fuller was arrested at Fleischmanns on Monday afternoon by Trooper McGarvey on a warrant, sworn out here charging Fuller with neglecting to provide for the support of his two young sons. The hearing was set down for Thursday morning in police court here.

Congress Is Studying Communication Bill

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP).—The administration bill to create a federal communications commission of seven members to regulate foreign and interstate telegraph, telephone, cable and radio services was introduced today in both houses of congress.

Quickly responding to a request received yesterday from President Roosevelt, Senate Bill (D-Wash.) and Representative Rayburn (D-Tex.), chairmen respectively of the senate and house committees on interstate commerce, offered the legislation.

Hearings are to start before the house committee as soon as the Fletcher-Rayburn stock exchange regulation bill is out of the way. The senate committee will get to it also as soon as possible.

While applying to "common carriers" virtually the same provisions of the interstate commerce act, the measure reenacts and broadens the radio act to give the commission wider powers over the newest of the communications services.

It would make more stringent the prohibitions against alien ownership of radio facilities and revise the radio broadcasting zones.

One new provision which frames of the measure said would perhaps cause the greatest controversy would investigate any annual service contracts between operating companies and service affiliates.

John L. Wilkie was re-elected chairman of the board and Ernest R. Acker president and general manager of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation at the annual meeting of the directors today.

The meeting followed directly the annual meeting of the stockholders, there being no changes in either directors or officers.

The directors are Ernest R. Acker, Frank N. Bain, Stephen R. Bradley, George H. Howard, Robert B. MacGinness, George N. Miller, Edward E. Perkins, Harris F. Reynolds, Paul A. Schoellkopf, Alva S. Staples, John L. Wilkie and John Wilkie.

Other officers re-elected were John Wilkie, vice president and treasurer; Peter A. Burnes, vice president; H. V. Dutcher, secretary and assistant treasurer; M. H. Bigelow, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer; J. R. Gardner, assistant secretary.

Zoo Experts Say Humans Give Disease to Animals

Animals most difficult to acclimatize to our weather conditions, says a writer in the Philadelphia Record, are the howling monkeys, the orang-outang, North African and Indian birds. Practically all others become accustomed to North American climate comparatively easily.

The best examples of these are the camels, which reach the place where they eat snow—when they can get it—and antelopes, which frequently are found lying in the snow and apparently enjoying it. Indian monkeys become acclimatized after a single winter in this climate.

Contrary to a somewhat popular belief, pneumonia is not prevalent among menagerie animals. In fact, it is about the least common of animal diseases. It was pointed out that pneumonia and colds are not directly due to cold weather, but rather to crowding, which is a result of the cold, and to a lack of exercise, another direct result of inclement weather.

It is the observation of zoo experts that humans are usually responsible for cases of pneumonia, laryngitis and allied diseases among the animals.

Healthy wild animals have an almost unbelievable health reserve, it was pointed out, and unless imperiled by particularly virulent germs, will throw off impending illness if given proper diet and care.

China Always Called the Land of Many Religions

Three religions are acknowledged by the Chinese as indigenous—Confucianism, Buddhism and Taoism. There is no way of knowing how the bulk of the population is divided among these three. The bulk of the people, however, are Buddhists, while most Chinese profess and practice all three religions, which are not incompatible.

Buddhism, which arrived in China some 1,800 years ago, has a very elaborate ritual in that country. So has Taoism, which antedates the introduction of Buddhism, and which was originally a pure philosophy, but which has copied the Buddhist ceremonial. Confucianism has little outward show, except in ancestor worship, which is practiced everywhere throughout the country and has the sanction of Confucius.

There are Mohammedans in every province of China, and they probably number nearly 10,000,000. Chinese Christians number some 3,000,000.

Chinook Wind.

A chinook is a wind which blows from west or south over the Rocky mountains, where it descends as a dry wind, warm to winter and cool in summer. It is due to a cyclone's passing northward and continues for a few hours to several days. In Oregon and Washington the term is sometimes applied to a warm, moist southwest wind. The wind was so called by the white settlers of America, because it came from the direction of the Chinook camp.

Brown Is Recalled To Review Contracts

Former Postmaster General to Be Quizzed for More Testimony—House Committee Studies Bill to Reel Airmail Contracts to Private Concerns.

Washington, Feb. 27 (AP).—Walter F. Brown, postmaster general, under President Hoover, was called again today before a Senate committee for more testimony on airmail matters that have stirred Congress.

Chairman Black, with whom Brown duelled verbally last week, was ready to take up the questioning again.

The House post office committee continued shaping a bill to reel airmail contracts to private concerns at a two mile per hour rate.

Chairman Rogers (D-N.Y.) of the House committee digging into army airplane contracts, expressed hope today that the bulky war department appropriation bill would be held up until his inquiry is finished.

Rogers contends the war department has violated the intent of Congress by purchasing planes without competitive bidding. The rules committee will be pressed next week to give the right of way to a resolution to let his group hire a sleuth or two for an extended inquiry.

McGraw Liked Players With Fighting Spirit and Courage

GLANCING AT SPORTS

By Joe Kelly

By ALAN GOULD

Associated Press Sports Writer
Miami, Fla., Feb. 27. (AP)—The fighting spirit and courage which have been the hallmarks of Joe McGraw in the past are being brought to the fore in the most spectacular of all sports, basketball.

That was the way McGraw stood out as coming closest of all to the affections of the old master, the immortal Christy Mathewson and Howie Young, the Texas that McGraw developed into one of the great leaders of modern times. Both are dead now and if there's a Valhalla for the heroes of baseball, McGraw will have a welcome for their former chieftain.

Loved Matty and Young
Mathewson, McGraw once told me, "not only was a master craftsman in the box but he had the heart of a lion. No greater pitcher ever lived."
Pitcher of Matty and Young was a prominent place for years in McGraw's office at the Polo Grounds. Shortly after he turned the club over to Bill Terry in 1922 McGraw came in one day and removed them, at a time when he thought no one would observe this evidence of sentiment. Terry walked in and McGraw hastened to apologize, saying: "Bill, I didn't think you would mind if I took these. You know how I felt about those fellows."

His All-Star Team
During his lifetime McGraw always ducked the issue of picking an all-star team from the Giants he directed over a 30 year period but it can be told now that Terry was his choice for first, with Frank Frisch, Dave Baneroff and Arthur Devlin completing the infield. Young, Mike Donlin and George Browne in the outfield, Mathewson and Bresnahan, the number one battery. He did not include Rogers Hornsby, who played only one year with the Giants.

Wagner Greatest All-Around
Hans Wagner was McGraw's idea of the greatest all-around player of all time and none of Babe Ruth's exploits ever made the old man change his mind. To him the Babe was just a slugger. These two outstanding figures, Ruth and McGraw, waged a battle of power and wit during the 1921-22-23 world series with honors about even.

McGraw was often charged with "buying" his best clubs, acquiring ready-made stars instead of taking the time and pains necessary to developing his own talent. He pointed to men like Young and Frisch to refute this but neverthless spent close to $500,000 for major or minor league stars. He got a new "high" in 1911 by purchasing Rube Marquard from Indianapolis for $11,000 but in later years $75,000 was not too much to pay for a minor league phenom, such as the ill-starred Jimmy O'Connell.

Could Handle Eccentrics
McGraw had a reputation for being able to handle eccentric or troublesome players. "Bugs" Raymond, Larry McLean, Heinie Zimmerman, Chief Myers and Jim Thorpe were some of the more colorful characters he handled. He tried hard but in vain to teach Thorpe how to hit curve ball pitching. He hired a body-guard for Raymond but "Bugs" outsmarted his manager and keeper one day when he was handed a ball and told to go out in the bullpen. Raymond was missing when summoned later and McGraw discovered the eccentric pitcher in a nearby saloon, where he had traded the ball for some drinks.
A leaping catch by Red Murray at a critical stage of a game in Pittsburgh years ago, just as a terrific thunderstorm broke, gave McGraw one of his greatest thrills. Matty was pitching. The bat cracked and a line drive sizzled over the infield. Then came a lightning flash, revealing vividly Murray in the air with his glove spearing the ball.

BILLIARDS

The city billiard tournament match at Nick's Monday night was won by "Hotch" Alcon over Palmer Broadhead, 100-71. High runs were Alcon 14 and Broadhead 10.
Tonight's match: Steve Kaslich vs. Billy Hopper, at 9 o'clock.

Wife of Baseball's Hero Played Big Role In Giants' Handling

Intimate Friends Reveal Important Part Mrs. Blanche Sindall McGraw Had in Encouraging Giants' Pitch —Was Ardent Fan and Critic

By ROBERT J. CAVAGNARO
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 27. (AP)—A few days ago Mrs. Blanche Sindall McGraw was known as just the wife of baseball's most picturesque character. Today intimate friends revealed that she, unknown to the public in general and the sporting public in particular, played an important role in his management of the New York Giants for 30 years.

Edward T. Brannick, assistant secretary of the club, who started at the age of 12 as an office boy and in his 23 years association grew to look upon McGraw as a father, spoke feelingly of the couple's private life.

A Lovable Pair

"They were a devoted and lovable pair," Brannick said. "Mrs. McGraw was his best companion. When the team struck a losing streak John would become blue. She was the only one able to console him."

"Mrs. McGraw, you know, is an ardent baseball fan. In the twenties she rarely missed a game played at the Polo Grounds. Often he discussed baseball strategy with her and he listened carefully to her criticism."

Spoke to Wife Last

It was to her McGraw spoke his last words.

Frank Belcher, former actor and cigar manufacturer, who palled with him for 40 years and was one of the few persons outside of members of the family admitted to McGraw's room in New Rochelle Hospital before he went into a coma Saturday night, wept as he told of the death scene.

Mrs. McGraw, he said, was standing at her husband's bedside. She was sobbing audibly.

Calling on his rapidly waning vitality, McGraw roused himself and asked:

"Why are you crying, Blanche?" "Oh, John, I'm crying because I'm so happy you're getting well," she said, then leaned over and kissed him.

"You know I'll be out of here tomorrow," he said, and added:

"Blanche, I love you dearer than anything else."

Then he closed his eyes and a few minutes later lapsed into the coma from which he failed to rally and did not speak again.

Borgmans Call Off Game, Rhinebeck to Substitute

Henny Borgman and his Paterson Crescents will not play at B. W. S. Hall, High Falls, tomorrow night. Poor traveling conditions on account of the recent snow storms prompted Manager McCormack of the New Jersey state team to phone Pete Bruck late last night canceling the game with his All Stars.

McCormack said he didn't care to send out his men with the roads in such bad condition, with danger lurking on every icy turn; and also was of the opinion that fans would not care to turn out like they would if traveling were good. This would make it hard on the boxoffice, one of the important things to traveling clubs like the Crescents that have a heavy payroll.

Manager McCormack in calling off the game said his Crescents would be available for Wednesday, March 7, and Peter Bruck booked them to

Regardless of the cancellation by the Crescents, there will be games at B. W. S. tomorrow night. The Rhinebeck A. C. having been promised to substitute for the Patersons in the feature against the Bruck All Stars. The other game will be between the Stone Ridge Juniors and Stone Ridge Clowns. There will be a dance concluding the program with music by the Stone Ridge Revelers.

In the feature schedule for 9 o'clock, Rhinebeck will take the floor with its regular lineup: Tom and Tod Merryweather, Asher, Travis and "Dutch" Ruge. The Brucks will start the battle with Chilson and Van Dusen, forwards; Knoll, center; Cullum and Wood, guards.

The Stone Ridge Juniors will have LaPolt, Snyder, Williams, Schaffer and Stokes; the Clowns, Davis, Roosa, Muller, Pres Evory, Vic Evory, Christiana and Clyde Brown. This game will be at 8 o'clock.

Comforter Seniors Play Z. N. P's. At White Eagle Hall

The regular Tuesday basketball program will go on at White Eagle Hall tonight, featuring the Z. N. P. quintet against the Comforter Seniors in the main attraction which is supported by two preliminaries that promise lots of action.

In the headliner, Manager "Dolly" Tessio will use his regular Z. N. P. brigade: Kieffer, Kolano and Taterewski, forwards; Quest, center; Kennock, Dudek, Joyce and Musialkewicz, guards. This is the group of players that last week defeated St. Mary's Big Five, 21-22.

The Comforters will have Stumpf, Van Bramer, Williams and R. Van Bramer, forwards; Joyce, center; Post and Whitmore, guards. It is the desire of the churchmen to get back on the winning road after bowing to the Senecas for the third time Saturday, and they hope to do this in their battle with the Z. N. P's.

Starting time of the big attraction is 8:30. The first preliminary will be at 7:30 between the Z. N. P. Girls and St. Mary's and the second between the White Eagles and another strong team.

Expectations are that there will be a large following of fans to "root" for the teams scheduled.

Carnera Favored, 3-1, Small Gate Expected

Lack of Interest in Tommy's Chances of Beating Giant Champ Indicates Match Won't Draw $75,000—There'll Be No Radio Broadcast

By EDWARD J. NEILL
Associated Press Sports Writer

Miami, Fla., Feb. 27. (AP)—The artistic success of Primo Carnera's heavyweight title defense against Tommy Loughran amid a background of palms seems assured, regardless of the outcome, but from a financial standpoint the receipts tomorrow night probably will fade all the way back to the low records of boxing's dark ages.

Won't Draw $75,000

As the huge champion from Italy and Loughran, his veteran challenger, were content today with light exercise and rest, the training campaign over, it became apparent from lack of interest at the box office that the match will not draw more than $75,000 in gate receipts.

Not since Tex Rickard came out of the gambling lands of the far west years ago to set new records for fight receipts through a combination of promoting genius and the fighting ability of Jack Dempsey has the heavyweight championship fight business fallen to such low financial state. In fact the last heavyweight title match that dropped below $75,000 in receipts was Jim Corbett's failure to regain his crown from Jim Jeffries in 1903. That match drew $63,340.

Odds on Primo Still 3 to 1.
Odds on Carnera to retain his championship, perhaps by an early knockout, still hold at 3 to 1 and a few wagers have been made with the titleholder a favorite as high as 5 to 1, a situation which has the veterans shaking their heads and analyzing sharply the chances of a 185 pound Loughran beating a 255 pound Carnera.

As the athletes finished hard training yesterday, the Miami boxing commission named Collis McLachlan and Roy Latham to judge the fight with Leo Shea previously appointed referee. The match is scheduled for 10 p. m. (E.S.T.) and will not be broadcast.

Snow Cancels The Game With Davids

Because the roads were practically impassable in some places on the route the House of David team had to travel, the Bearded Beauties called off their game with Jack Troy's Luckies at White Eagle Hall, Monday night. Manager "Dolly" Tessio of the Luckies was not able to say today whether the famous road club would appear here later in the season.

Rate of Finger Nail Growth
The nail on the middle finger grows faster than any other, while the thumb nail is the slowest growing nail. As a rule, the nails on the right hand grow faster than those on the left. The nails on an invalid's hands grow considerably faster than on the hands of a healthy person. Taken on the average the rate of growth is one eighth inch a month, or from one to one and one-half inches a year.

Murphy's Winter
Murphy's Winter is the name popularly given in England to the winter of 1867-68. Patrick Murphy to his "Weather Almanac" prophesied that January 28, 1868, "would be fair, probably lowest degree of winter temperature." This day turned out to be the coldest in many years, and, as a result, the edition of the almanac was rapidly exhausted and Murphy made a considerable profit.

Domestic Lofly tale
Domitius is the subject of the Caribbees. There dwell the last of Caribbees, the aborigines of the Antilles, once fierce cannibals, but now mild-mannered, peaceful people. It was of Domitius that Rodney defeated De Grouse in 1782. Domitius is the greatest of the Caribbees and the main port and capital.

Vocabulary for Pictures
One who writes of nature, needs eloquent, Readers want no common place descriptions. They are familiar with too many masterpieces, declares a columnist in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, to be satisfied with the inadequate. Thoreau and John Burroughs at home and Ruskin and Maeterlinck abroad have given us examples of inspiration, not to mention the many poets whose gift it is to excel. One may skim through uninspired attempts at grandeur and see at least where the line pencil should have been applied to state adjectives. He can even see it in his own work, afterward. How the "opales" and "amethystines," and "corals" need to be sawed out. Exaltation of mind does not always bear fruit in exaltation of diction. Feeling, truly enough, is necessary, but something else is demanded, a study of words with their shades of meaning, of cadence, and the unexpected expression of thought chosen from a fresh vocabulary. These make the gems of English that

Where To Rate Max?
"How good was Max Schmeling?" ask those who seem a trifle baffled by the swift descent of the good-natured, black-haired young German who looked like the best heavyweight in the game two or four years ago.

It is easy to figure that Max was overrated, that he simply appeared to be the best of a poor crop, and he seemed where near the facts. Nevertheless, it is impossible to toss out the German's early fights in this country, when ambition and necessity combined to spur him on, or to eliminate the impression of ability displayed in whipping such good men as Johnny Risko and Young Stribling. Schmeling stopped both, something no other heavyweight ever achieved, and clearly was the victim of a bad decision when he lost the heavyweight title to Jack Sharkey in 1932.

On the other hand Schmeling unquestionably was the beneficiary of a fluky decision when he was awarded the heavyweight crown on a foul in his bout with Sharkey in 1930 at the Yankee Stadium. As boxers go, the German was strictly a plunger. His methods, more methodical than scientific or spectacular, looked good or bad according to the type of fighter he opposed. He undoubtedly suffered from the effects of being rushed into the championship by accident and editor, rather than by his own personal superiority.

He changed his style, married, fought less frequently and lost the fine edge of fighting spirit through easier habits of living. All this combined to affect his ring prowess, but it took Hamus to make the situation clear to our second-guessers. Prior to the Philadelphia fight, the word along tin-can alley was that a "new Schmeling" was about to tear loose, pound poor Steve into a pulp and chase Primo Carnera back to Italy.

Then There's The Kingfish.
Meanwhile it would be an excellent idea to toss King Levinsky into the ring with Hamus in the near future.

The suspicion that the Kingfish won't do as a substitute for Max Baer was aroused by his exhibition against young Charley Massera recently in Madison Square Garden. The Garden is willing to match Levinsky and Hamus if the Kingfish disposes of Walter Neusel on March 9.

The possibility of a match between Baer and Hamus, as the last two conquerors of Schmeling, may develop, but it would be a better idea for Steve to keep busy in the ring, instead of waiting for Max to be pried from the song and dance circuit.

You hear a lot today about balanced diet—
... and there's something too in the way tobaccos are balanced that makes a cigarette milder and makes it taste better.

I keep coming back to that statement on the back of the Chesterfield package—

CHESTERFIELD CIGARETTES

ARE A BALANCED BLEND OF THE FINEST AROMATIC TURKISH TOBACCO AND THE CHOICEST OF SEVERAL AMERICAN VARIETIES BLENDED IN THE CORRECT PROPORTION TO BRING OUT THE FINEST QUALITIES OF EACH TOBACCO.

Chesterfield

—the cigarette that's Milder

—the cigarette that TASTES BETTER

We believe you'll enjoy Chesterfields and we ask you to try them.
